Religion Is Emphasized After
Regular Fashion in Spirit of Patriotic Thanks

Thanksgiving was spent yesterday by Tulsans in "counting on blessings" and then in straightway contracting new obligations for thankfulness by enjoyment of pleasures for which thankfulness was again due.

For all, those least blessed as well as those most favored with worldly possessions, the day was one of rest, following of the favorite recreations and free partaking at tables crowded with Thanksgiving cheer. To surfers, Tulsa dined, dined, family reunioned, motorized, picture-showed and foot-balled.

Bounty Is Shared.
The knowledge that the "other half" and young people away from home had been given something of Thanksgiving joy brought its mode of contentment. Selmon, perhaps, has been singular sharing of Thanksgiving bounty.

If there was danger of the real meaning of the day being swamped in superficiality, it was averted in church services where the place of thanksgiving in patriotism and religion were emphasized. There was good attendance at all church services.

"Stabat Mater" was again successfully presented by a chorus choir at the First Christian church. The church was filled for the event and the audience proved sympathetic and appreciative.

The heights and depths of the Thanksgiving meaning were well stated by Rev. C. W. Kerr from the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning. He said in part:

Kerr Talks at First Christian.
"Amnesia is a physical disease which affects the mind so as to obliterate all memory. Every one is familiar with incidents where men so affected have forgotten their past, the faces of loved ones. While it is a rare disease physically, it is a very common one in the spiritual world and may be defined as the disease of forgetfulness of God. The unforgettable refrain in King's 'Recessional' is 'Be with us yet, lest we forget.'"

Given Is Forgotten.
"Gratitude is nothing but spiritual amnesia. In prayer we forget to say thanks. Our greatest peril is our prosperity. As a nation we have increased tremendously in wealth and prosperity. As Tulsans we pride ourselves upon our great prosperity, but that very prosperity becomes our greatest peril in causing us to forget the giver of all good things."

"The accusation brought against Israel of old was 'My people have forgotten me,' God said. 'Thou hast forgotten thy God and thy salvation and hast not been mindful of the rock of thy strength.' Our strength became an opiate which ministers to spiritual amnesia. 'God said of Israel, 'They have gone from mountain to mountain and have forgotten their resting place.' It is a figure and a thought of sheep wandering over the mountains and having forgotten the shepherd and the sheepfold. That same charge may be offered to many people in this western country who have gone from place to place and have forgotten their resting place and their God. We are so on the move that God is kicked out of our minds. Jowett, the great English preacher, when he was pastor of the Fifth Avenue church in New York City, said, 'I think the enemy of our souls must love to keep us in a whirl, for once we are dizzy with the sensation we are likely to lose the thought of God.'

Purse Ahead of Piety.
"Our piety does not seem to pace with our purse. It is so easy to forget to be grateful. We are like the olive lepers, for ten of them were healed and only one came back to say thank you. When she was broke out in Europe many American tourists were stranded in the war zone. They found that their letters of credit and bank drafts could not be cashed. The American government advanced to the relief of these citizens the extent of the expenditure of $2,500,000. A short time ago the treasury department made public the fact that only a few of these persons had paid back the money."

"Joseph Parker once said, 'Never go to God for new blessings until you have given him a receipt for the old ones.' I am glad to know that in our American life our government calls our attention to the fact that we ought to be grateful. When the New England colonies were first settled, they endured many hardships and it became their custom to appoint days for fast. But it developed that these fasts made the people gloomy and discontented and so discouraged. As some wished to return to England, at last it was decided to have one day of fasting and prayer, but one Puritan amended the resolution to the holding of a day of thanksgiving on the ground that the colony was growing stronger, that the rivers were full of fish, the woods were full of game and that above all they were enjoying that for which they came, civil and religious liberty. That was the beginning of Thanksgiving day."

"Even the colonists had many things to be thankful for when they began to count up their blessings. I am sure that all of us can find many things to be thankful for if we count our blessings. I heard once of a property writer who wished to sell his home and who asked a real estate agent to write a description of the place for publication for sale. When the real estate agent read aloud to the owner his sales advertisement, the owner said, 'Read that again. I don't think I'll sell. I have been looking for a home like that all my life and did not know I was living in it.'"

"So it is with our blessings. We have had them all along and did not know it. The gladness and joy of the lives of many of our shut-ins and constant sufferers ought to put us to shame so that we should never again utter a word of complaint."

Banish Catarrh
Breathe Hyomel For Two Minutes and Stuffed Up Head Will Go

If you want to get safe relief from catarrh, cold in the head or from an irritating cough in the shortest time, breathe Hyomel.

It will clean out your head in two minutes and allow you to breathe freely, awake or asleep, or money refunded.

Hyomel should end a cold in one day, and relieve you of disgusting sniffles, hawking, spitting and offensive breathe in a week.

Hyomel is made chiefly from eucalyptus, a soothing, healing, germ-killing antiseptic, that comes from the eucalyptus forests of inland Australia, where catarrh, asthma and other bronchial troubles are seldom known.

Hyomel is pleasant and easy to breathe. Just pour a few drops into the Hard Rubber Inhaler, use as directed and relief is almost certain.

A Complete Hyomel Outfit, including inhaler and one bottle of Hyomel, costs but little at drug stores everywhere.—Advt.

plaint. Would that we might all emulate the spirit of the old dorky who declared that if turned away from heaven's gate he would say 'Anyhow, I had a good time getting here.' How much better the world would be if we would carry that spirit with us always.

"The children of Israel lived for a long time at Marah, which means a place of bitterness. Then they removed to Elim, where there were twelve wells of sweet water, surrounded by 70 palm trees. Some of us have been living at Marah. Let us remove to Elim. Let us leave grumbling alley and move to Thanksgiving street. Let us learn to play the glad game, like Pollyanna. The Thanksgiving habit puts us in line for greater blessings from God and enables him to use us more fully in bringing blessings to others. Let us be thankful for the common, everyday blessings of life and for the array of ministries that have come to us along the pathway of life. Above all, be thankful for the redemption of Jesus Christ. May we today recognize Jesus as our Saviour."

BRITAIN 'CALLED' BY SECY. COLBY

"The United States is undoubtedly one of the powers directly interested in the terms of the mandate, and, therefore, request that the draft mandates be communicated to this government before their submission to the council of the league."

"The fact cannot be ignored," Mr. Colby continues, "that the reported resources of Mesopotamia have interested public opinion of the United States, Great Britain and other countries as a potential factor in the economic situation."

Can't Accept British Plan.
"Because of the fact that they became an outstanding question with reference to which the mandate principles was especially designed, and indeed, a peculiarly critical test of the good faith of the nations which have given their adherence to the principle. This principle was accepted in the hope of obviating the future those international differences that grow out of a desire for the exclusive control of the resources and markets of annexed territories."

Mr. Colby then frankly states that the American government finds difficulty in reconciling the special arrangements set forth in the so-called San Remo petroleum agreement between Great Britain and France. With the British government's statement that the petroleum resources of Mesopotamia and freedom of action in regard thereto will be secured to the future Arab state, as yet unorganized.

"Furthermore," he says, "it is difficult to harmonize that special arrangement with your statement that no rights to petroleum concessions or to the exploitation of oil, and in view of our assurance that it is not the intention of the mandatory power to establish on its own behalf any kind of monopoly, I am at a loss to understand how to construe the provision of the San Remo agreement that any private petroleum company which may develop Mesopotamia oil fields shall be under permanent British control."

"In this connection, I might observe that such information as this government has received indicates that, prior to the war, the Turkish petroleum company, to make specific reference, possessed in Mesopotamia no rights to petroleum concessions or to the exploitation of oil, and in view of our assurance that it is not the intention of the mandatory power to establish on its own behalf any kind of monopoly, I am at a loss to understand how to construe the provision of the San Remo agreement that any private petroleum company which may develop Mesopotamia oil fields shall be under permanent British control."
